Message From Indiana South Governor Jim Tribble:

Bringing Hope to Life: Optimism in Action and the Power of Our Growing Community

To every member and guest who is joining us today at the Plainfield Carlucci Aquatics Center—whether you are a long-serving officer or leader, a returning volunteer, or stepping into your very first meeting—welcome.

Our quarterly meetings serve as an essential part of our Optimist Mission. They keep us focused and on track to achieve Optimism in our communities and across Southern Indiana. They are a dedicated space to conduct essential business, to learn about recent accomplishments of our clubs, and new opportunities for collaboration. More than that, they offer a space and a time for connection with old and new friends, for sharing ideas, and mutual inspiration.

Throughout today's session, you will suffer through routine business, hear updates on two Club Showcase Projects, learn from dedicated guest speakers, and have the chance to contribute your ideas during our open discussions.

Today, as we gather for our Quarterly Meeting, we celebrate the accomplishments that Optimism has made toward fulfilling its core community mission, but at the same time acknowledge we have serious membership issues that can only be addressed by individual clubs and their members. To survive and thrive, we must regain a profound commitment to recruiting new members within our own local club and its members. Remember, if you ask 100 times, you will probably get turned down 95 times but have 5 new members. The rejection is worth the gain.

My team and I are dedicated to helping your efforts in any way possible.

Also, we have lost some clubs over the past few years. We also have several clubs that are approaching critically low membership. We must NOT find ourselves exiting additional communities; rather, we need to strive to identify the best options to build a new club and work to achieve that goal. There are too many communities across Indiana South that need the presence of an Optimist Club. Share your ideas about how to make that happen.

Again, my team and I are dedicated to working with you to build a new club in your area.

For our veteran members, today is an opportunity to reconnect, to share and, indeed, to learn. Thank you for being here again.

For our newest attendees, it is an invitation to dive in, to find your passion within both your club and your district, and to take ownership of our shared mission. Thanks for donating your time and talent today to learn more about Achieving the Mission of Optimism.
